TO KEEP OUT OF CAMPAIGN

North American Declares Former President Confided His Views Regarding the Presidency to That Paper One Year Ago—Roosevelt Is Not a Candidate, Is Not Pledged to Taft or Any One Else and Will Take No Part in the Contest.

Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—The Philadelphia North American, known as one of the progressive Republican newspapers in the East, has issued an announcement purporting to contain authoritatively the views of Theodore Roosevelt regarding his position in the presidential campaign of 1912. The statement follows:

"Just one year ago Colonel Roosevelt confided to this newspaper his views touching the use of his name as a receptive candidate for the Republican nomination and his firm purpose to adhere thereto. There were ample reasons for his expressions. Ever since his return from abroad there had been a growth in public interest regarding his attitude toward the president.

"At that time influential Eastern papers were proclaiming that Colonel Roosevelt was actually pledged to support Mr. Taft for renomination and were intimating that news of this arrangement emanated from the White House itself. Many national leaders accepted these statements as facts. Endorsement of the Taft administration in the New York Republican platform was hailed as proof that Roosevelt was committed to the Taft candidacy.

"It was this assertion which Colonel Roosevelt disposed of in his confidentially to the North American and suggestions of his own candidacy naturally followed he disposed of them also.

Will Keep Out of Campaign.

"He declared most emphatically that he had not pledged his support to Mr. Taft, privately or publicly, in secret terms, or even by implication. He declared he would not support any man for the nomination in 1912, neither Mr. Taft nor any one else. As to a statement that the president believed he would have Roosevelt's support Colonel Roosevelt said that Mr. Taft could not possibly believe anything of the kind; that, in fact, Mr. Taft knew that neither Mr. Taft nor any one else had one particle of ground for such an opinion.

"As to the persistent suggestion that he had designs upon the nomination himself Colonel Roosevelt was equally emphatic and explicit at that time and on subsequent occasions. More than once in our presence Colonel Roosevelt received tenders of support from men of wide political influence, men who will control delegates in the convention. Some of these men were progressives; others were 'near' progressives; several were of reactionary sympathies.

"To each and every such proposal Colonel Roosevelt replied substantially as stated above and added with equal emphasis and forceful sincerity that he was not in the remotest sense a candidate for the nomination and that he declared and deplored all such suggestion as were being made to him."

CRANE DESIRES ROOSEVELT

Author of Letter.

Washington, Nov. 27.—W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts is the United States senator who wrote to Theodore Roosevelt offering the support of himself and of his friends in the event that Mr. Roosevelt desires to be a candidate for the presidency next year. This statement is made on the authority of a friend of Crane and Roosevelt who has personal knowledge of the correspondence which passed between them on this matter.

The disclosure of Senator Crane as the author of the offer of political aid to the former president has caused excitement among the politicians of the capital. The telephone wires in Washington and between here and New York and Boston have been busy with consultations of Republican party leaders concerning the effect the revelation will have on the country at large.

SMUGGLED CHINESE IN CAR

Four Are Found in Rock Island Chicago Yards.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Four Chinese, believed to have been smuggled into the United States, were found here secreted in a box car on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad. Secret service operatives of the department of justice, who made a number of arrests last week on charges of Chinese smuggling, found the Celestials.

The find was at the same place where a week ago Emil Hegenbeck was shot by railroad watchmen, as he apparently was trying to break into a freight car. The car was found to contain two Chinese.

HAMMOND ENDS
LONG SILENCEAmerican Talks About Events
Leading to Boer War.

SEVERELY ARRAIGNS KRUGER

Declares Boer President Opposed Progress, Believed World Was Flat and Devil Had a Tail—Says Secretary of State Olney Caused Kruger to Commute Death Sentences of Americans for Participation in Jameson Raid.

Boston, Nov. 27.—Released by time from an oath not to talk on South African affairs or reveal any of the "inside events" leading up to the Boer war for three years John Hays Hammond, who was conspicuous in that war, broke his silence for the first time at a dinner of the Clover club.

Mr. Hammond said the Jameson raid was the result of the activities of a reform association formed at Johannesburg and consisting largely of Americans.

"I want especially," said Mr. Hammond, "to correct a misunderstanding. It has been said we were acting under the British flag. That is false.

"Much sympathy has been wasted on Oom Paul Kruger. He was opposed to progress, believed the world was flat and that the devil had a tail. His impositions were such as no man of the Anglo-Saxon race would have tolerated.

"The reform movement against Kruger was not an English movement. Jameson came into the fight against our wishes and against the wishes of the British high commissioner. I sent word to him to go back and, when he persisted, the only thing to do was to bluff Kruger into believing that we had more arms than he really had. We did so and Kruger sent over an olive branch to Johannesburg. They agreed to all but two things and that was that no contract should be accepted with a Catholic or a Jew. This we flatly refused.

"Kruger played false with the reform committee after the Jameson raid, broke all his promises and after he had obtained the arms in Johannesburg he arrested the entire committee.

"He gave the men to understand that if they pleaded guilty they would be let off with a fine. Instead they were sentenced to be hanged within twenty-four hours. An emphatic dispatch from Secretary Olney caused Kruger and the Boer council to hesitate and after an all night session the council voted to commute the sentences to life imprisonment."

SIX WRECKERS BLOWN UP

Accident Occurs While Trying to Save Explosives.

Cleveland, Nov. 27.—Six Florida wreckers were blown up while attempting to procure a box of explosives, part of the cargo of the steamer Prinz Joachim, which went ashore Nov. 22 at Atwood bay.

This information was conveyed in a message from the Prinz Joachim, which was picked up by one of the wireless stations here.

While the cargo of the Prinz Joachim was being jettisoned a swarm of wreckers lay about, watching an opportunity, according to their custom, to salvage any part of the cargo. A chance came when three boats almost simultaneously spied a floating box. They made for it with all haste. There was a sharp struggle for the box. Watchers aboard the Prinz Joachim then saw the water thrown high in the air by an explosion and thereafter nothing of the boats or men was to be seen.

TWO KILLED IN MINE CAVEIN

at Bessemer, Mich.

Bessemer, Mich., Nov. 27.—Two miners lost their lives and a third barely escaped the same fate when a cavein occurred in the Yale mine. Stanley Curran and Charles Donli were caught under the falling rock and entombed alive. After several hours' hard digging the two men were reached. Curran was dead when taken out. Donli died later.

It is asserted that the mine was declared unsafe a long time ago and the authorities will investigate.

TWO GIRLS DIE IN CAVEIN

Collapsed Tunnel.

Kansas City, Nov. 27.—When their hand and save on the bank of the Kaw river in Kansas City, Kan., collapsed two little girls, Flossie and Ethel Hutchinson, fourteen and eleven years old, respectively, were killed; their sister Lydia, sixteen years old, was almost suffocated and Harold Hutchins, a neighbor boy, was seriously injured. That the latter two children did not meet the fate of the others was due to the heroic efforts of Lizzie Sparks, an eleven-year-old girl, who dug the sand away with her hands.

LORD CAMOYS.
English Nobleman Weds
Young American Heiress.

LORD CAMOYS WEDS HEIRESS

Youngest Daughter of W. M. Sherman of New York Marries.

New York, Nov. 27.—Miss Mildred Sherman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman, heiress to many millions, was married to Lord Camoys, a young English nobleman. The bride's father, ill for some time, was wheeled in an invalid chair to the drawing room, where the ceremony was performed in the presence of only members of the bride's immediate family and the bridegroom's two brothers, Hugh and Edward Storr. The illness of Mr. Sherman, his strong desire to witness the wedding and the fear that he might not live another week are responsible for putting forward the marriage one week.

STEPHENSON WILL
Large Sums of Money.

Washington, Nov. 27.—With the declaration that no instances of vote buying were discovered but with words of censure for the use of large sums of money in his campaign the senate committee which investigated the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson is expected to report shortly after the opening of congress.

Senator Stephenson, according to a well founded report here, will be declared fully entitled to his seat. The use of money in the Stephenson campaign was the result of the Wisconsin primary system, it was claimed in the hearings, and a condemnation of that system either in the committee's report or by members of the committee on the floor of the senate is now looked for.

The committee's report is now being written; its submission to all the senators who heard the testimony is only a matter of a few days and it is predicted that it will be disposed of by the senate before the Lorimer case is looked for.

BUSY DAY FOR GOVERNORS

Northwest Executives Will Be Guests
of Taft at Dinner Dec. 7.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Governors Eberhart, Burke and Vessey and their associates from other Western states will be busy men on Dec. 7, the only day they are to spend in Washington on their Eastern trip. In the morning the governors will attend the meeting of the national rivers and harbors congress. At luncheon they will be guests of their state delegations at the Capitol and afterwards they will be guests of the Washington chamber of commerce when a committee will show them the city in automobiles. At night President Taft is to give a dinner in their honor. They will leave the city at midnight.

CUT GOVERNMENT EXPENSE

President Will Urge Economy in Message to Congress.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Estimates of the money needed from congress to run the government machine for the fiscal year have been submitted to Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. The president expects to devote some space in his message to government economy and several months ago gave instructions to department heads to cut this year's estimates as much as possible.

Valuable Furs Stolen.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Nov. 27.—Keir & Brown's store was broken into here the cash register rifled and furs to the value of $11,000 were stolen. The robbers, who are thought to be a gang of expert American crooks, made a clean getaway without leaving a clue. The gang is believed to have robbed the Canadian Express company of the mail pouch worth $50,000 at Regina and also to have been implicated in the Saskatoon robbery.

CONGRESS IS

ington on Every Train.

Hughes, Fairbanks and Roosevelt Mentioned by Republicans—Many Democratic Senators For Woodrow Wilson. Borah For Presidential Primaries. Two Kansas City Prophets.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 27.—[Special.]—The hum of the congressional session is in the air. Incoming senators and representatives are getting ready for the busiest of all sessions, that which precedes a presidential campaign. Not only have the members of congress to shape their policies so as to give the greatest possible advantage to their party, but they also want to make records which will re-elect them in the coming campaign.

Therefore there is not only great interest in the important matters of legislation, but there is also a strong desire on the part of members to secure legislation for their constituents as a means of helping them in the elections. The men who are already on the ground are full of life and activity and have entered upon the advance work of the session with a great deal of vigor.

Politics Prominent. Naturally politics enters largely into the conversation of all the returning members. In fact, politics will rule the session to a great extent, and both parties will do their best to make capital for the campaign.

What is most interesting in the present political discussion is that Republicans as well as Democrats are talking about different candidates. It has been assumed that no other man than Mr. Taft would have a look in at the next convention, but there has been a great deal of talk about other possibilities. In fact, La Follette alone, who is an announced candidate, but the names of Hughes, Fairbanks, Roosevelt and others are heard in conversation.

Has Senatorial Backing.

Certainly Governor Wilson of New Jersey cannot complain of his senatorial backing. Among his supporters are Senator Hoke Smith, the new senator from Georgia; Senator Myers of Montana, and it is said that Senator O'Gorman of New York favors the New Jersey governor. At least he is quoted as saying that the late elections in New Jersey have not hurt Wilson's chances.

Chamberlain of Oregon is another supporter of Wilson, and Gore and Owens of Oklahoma are favoring him. Other progressive Democrats are for the New Jersey governor when their favorite son candidates are out of the way.

John Sharp Williams has declared for Wilson, much to the surprise of a number of Democrats, for Williams virtually bequeathed the minority leadership in the house to Champ Clark. It was supposed that he was very friendly to the speaker.

Senators on National Committee.

Three senators are members of the Republican national committee, Crane of Massachusetts, Penrose of Pennsylvania and Borah of Idaho. It is quite possible that Borah will be the champion of Bourne's proposition to have presidential primaries adopted when the national committee meets here next month.

Borah is committed to many of the progressive policies, including the primary system, for he has been the most earnest champion of election of senators by direct vote that the senate has seen. It was due to his hard work and persistence that the resolution for electing senators finally passed the senate.

Take Your Choice.

W. R. Childs, postmaster at Kansas City, was in Washington recently and asserted that while Kansas is going to be a great battlefield next year the Republicans will win. Kansas City assumes to speak for Kansas at times.

It may be well to quote Judge Richard Higgins, also of Kansas City, who asserts that Kansas will surely go Democratic in the next election. The political claim agents are early in the field.

Wastes No Time.

On the mantel behind Senator Bourne's desk in the senate office building are two or three boxes of crackers, raisins and shelled walnuts. The senator is not making a pure food investigation, as it might seem, but he believes in wasting no time at lunch, so he eats crackers and the other articles while at his work. Generally he will interrupt his lunch to talk to a visitor, but he can dictate interviews to newspaper men and get away with his frugal repast at the same time.

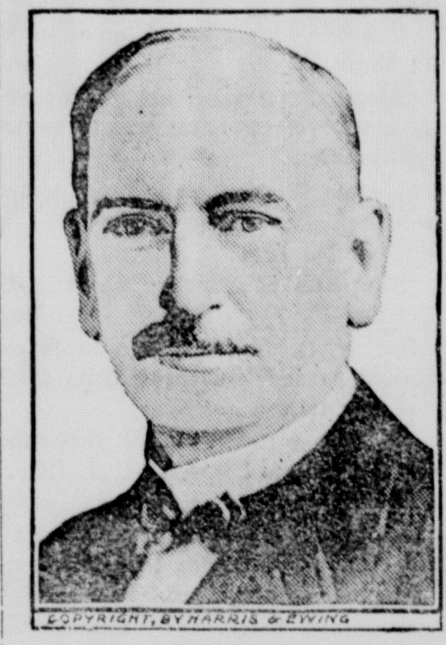

Waiting on Himself.

Much to the surprise of a number of persons, Senator Lodge was seen at a railroad office purchasing tickets. He stood in line and waited his turn like any other person who might be going to the Harvard commencement.

"If I had all the people about me that I lodge has," remarked one man, "I'll be hanged if I would stand in line or wait around to buy tickets. I'd send some one."

AROUSE TREATY SENTIMENT

Mass Meetings to Be Held in Favor of Pending Pacts.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Mass meetings in thirty important cities of the country during December and January to arouse sentiment in favor of the treaties between the United States and Great Britain and France, now pending, have been planned by the Citizens' National committee of New York, according to announcement.

The first meeting will be held in this city on Dec. 8 with President Taft as guest of honor and principal speaker. Senator Burton of Ohio will preside.

ITALIAN SLAYS WIFE
AND LOVER WITH AXEChops Off Heads of Couple on Finding Them Together.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 27.—Tortured by the mental picture of his headless wife and her paramour, whom he killed, Pasquade Marchesi, twenty-seven years old, a merchant, went to a priest and confessed the double killing, which had not been discovered. The young avenger of his honor was turned over to the police, who are closely guarding him for fear of possible mob violence.

According to Marchesi he went home and found his wife Rosaria and his cousin and namesake occupying Mrs. Marchesi's bed chamber. The younger Marchesi, who was not of age, had been a favorite of the husband and the scene drove him mad, he said. Without allowing his presence to become known Marchesi went to a woodshed, procured an axe, crept to the bedroom and killed the two lovers, hewing off their heads.

GREEK SHOTS DOWN THREE

One Frisco Policeman Dies and Another Hurt.

San Francisco, Nov. 27.—Policeman Charles G. Castor is dead and Policeman Thomas Finnely is so badly wounded that there is little hope of his recovery as the result of an attempt to arrest Paulous Prandoegos, a Greek, at the ferry building.

George Condos, a Greek restaurant keeper, was slightly wounded by Prandoegos.

Prandoegos is said to be wanted on a charge of murder in Volley, Greece, and an attempt was being made to arrest him when the shooting occurred.

TRAGEDY RESULT OF STRIKE

Quelling Disturbance.

Muscatine, Ia., Nov. 27.—The first fatality of Muscatine's bitter labor war occurred when Patrolman Gerischer was shot through the head when he interfered with a party of men who had been drinking and were creating a disturbance on the street.

Thomas Hoskins, a member of the local button workers' union, was arrested at Rock Island, Ill., charged with the murder of Gerischer, who died at Bellevue hospital several hours after he was shot.

BANKER MORSE HAS RELAPSE

Prison Authorities Fear He Is Nearing the End.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27.—Charles W. Morse, the New York convict-banker, who is seriously ill in the federal penitentiary here, suffered a severe relapse. Fears of death are entertained by the prison medical authorities. The relapse came after the decision to delay Morse's removal to the army hospital at Fort McPherson because of the severity of the weather. It is now a question as to whether Morse will live long enough to be transferred. Morse is reported to have been greatly pleased over the prospect of being removed to the hospital. Although he will be a prisoner there he will be relieved from the prison routine and restrictions and will be permitted to see his family and friends at any time.

Foreign Trade Grows.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The United States' trade with foreign countries has grown considerably this year compared with a year ago, according to statistics just issued. In exports the trade for the ten months ending with October increased $235,000,000, while the imports decreased $32,000,000. A balance in favor of the United States amounting to $401,500,000 existed Nov. 1.

Children Have Narrow Escape.

Milwaukee, Nov. 27.—Three children were overcome by smoke and rescued from the second floor of a burning building by firemen, when the home of Fred Wagner, Sr., caught fire. The oldest child, Fred, Jr., aged four years, in the excitement attendant upon the fire had crawled under a bed and was found there unconscious.

Newspaper Man Killed.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 27.—Martin I. Pierce, a newspaper man, was killed here while taking a cousin, Frederick C. Actively Preparing to Make an Assault on Nanking.

BIG GUNS FIRING ON CITY

Imperialists Attempt Sortie and Are Driven Back With Considerable Loss.
General Wong, Second in Command
of Defenses, Is Among the Killed.
Rebels Seem Determined to Capture Ancient Capital of China.

Nanking, Nov. 27.—After more than half a century of silence the hills overlooking the walled city of Nanking, the ancient capital of China, swarm with rebels determined to overthrow the last stronghold of the Manchus south of the Yangtze.

From the Tiger hill fort for several hours big guns spoke repeatedly, while further up along the northeastern range from the top of Purple mountain overlooking the Ming tombs for a fifteen-mile semi-circle westward to the Yangtze smaller forts scattered shells into every section of the city. So far as is known the casualty list is not large. General Wong, second in command of the defenders, is among those killed.

The Imperialists attempted a sortie, but were driven back with considerable losses. The Tiger hill batteries meanwhile were pouring shells into Lion hill and succeeded in silencing the Manchu batteries there.

There was some sharp fighting at the eastern and southern gates. The Imperialists fired upon a Red Cross train coming in on the railway. About 4,000 of General Chang's rawest recruits are now outside the city with machine guns, but a number have surrendered.

The object of the first seizure of Tiger hill was shown by the early appearance of four rebel cruisers and later of other warships. A dozen torpedo boat destroyers and cruisers are lying menacingly near the city.

The viceroy of Nanking and the Tatar general, in fear of General Chang, the imperialist commander, have taken refuge in the Japanese consulate, in which only the consul remains. He is the sole official representative of foreign interests now in Nanking. The consulate is well guarded by marines.

RAILWAY STRIKE IS AVERTED

Rock Island Shophmen Accept Company's Terms.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—The threatened strike of the 8,000 shophmen of the Rock Island railroad was averted when the men accepted the peace terms offered by the company and signed new wage scale schedules for another year.

The dispute began five months ago when the shophmen, through their local unions, presented a list of thirty-four grievances which they demanded adjusted. As the result of a series of conferences this list of grievances was reduced to six, both sides making concessions in the interest of peace.

The six points finally in dispute involved an increase of 2 cents an hour in wages and a change in working conditions.

The railroad officials refused these demands, declaring that general business conditions did not warrant any increase in operating expenses.

REPORTS BIG OLEO FRAUDS

Revenue Commissioner Says Double Tax Corrupts Grocers.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The annual report of Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of internal revenue, given out here, makes several startling declarations. All records were broken in the past fiscal year in the production of alcoholic liquors.

The smoking of opium is a widespread vice in this country and opium "joints" exist in every city of considerable size.

The double system of taxing oleomargarine is corrupting grocers and gross frauds are being perpetrated on the butter-buying public.

The internal revenue receipts last year were $322,526,399, the greatest in the history of the government.

CARRY MAIL BY AEROPLANE

Postmaster General to Recommend an Appropriation.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Postmaster General Hitchcock in his annual report will recommend that congress make an appropriation of at least $25,000 and not more than $50,000 for the experimental use of aeroplanes in the postal service, it is said.

The postmaster general will suggest that the matter be gone into, not with reference to any particular machine but to the general development of aeroplanes for practical postal service.

Bomb Mailed to Governor.

Charleroi, Pa., Nov. 27.—A peculiar looking package addressed to Governor John E. Tener at his home here aroused the suspicion of the postmaster and it was turned over to a postoffice inspector. When opened it was discovered to be a bomb. A search will be instituted to find out, if possible, who sent the infernal machine, which was mailed in Philadelphia.

North American Declares Former President Confided His Views Regarding the Presidency to That Paper One Year Ago—Roosevelt Is Not a Candidate, Is Not Pledged to Taft or Any One Else and Will Take No Part in the Contest.Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—The Philadelphia North American, known as one of the progressive Republican newspapers in the East, has issued an announcement purporting to contain authoritatively the views of Theodore Roosevelt regarding his position in the presidential campaign of 1912. The statement follows:"Just one year ago Colonel Roosevelt confided to this newspaper his views touching the use of his name as a receptive candidate for the Republican nomination and his firm purpose to adhere thereto. There were ample reasons for his expressions. Ever since his return from abroad there had been a growth in public interest regarding his attitude toward the president."At that time influential Eastern papers were proclaiming that Colonel Roosevelt was actually pledged to support Mr. Taft for renomination and were intimating that news of this arrangement emanated from the White House itself. Many national leaders accepted these statements as facts.
Endorsement of the Taft administration in the New York Republican platform was hailed as proof that Roosevelt was committed to the Taft candidacy."It was this assertion which Colonel Roosevelt disposed of in his conferences to the North American and suggestions of his own candidacy naturally followed he disposed of them also."He declared most emphatically that he had not pledged his support to Mr.
Taft, privately or publicly, in set terms, or even by implication. He declared he would not support any man in the nomination in 1912, neither Mr.
Taft nor any one else. As to a statement that the president believed he would have Roosevelt's support Colonel Roosevelt said that Mr. Taft could not possibly believe anything of the kind; that, in fact, Mr. Taft knew that either Mr. Taft nor any one else had any particle of ground for such an opinion."As to the persistent suggestion that he had designs upon the nomination himself Colonel Roosevelt was equally emphatic and explicit at that time and on subsequent occasions.
More than once in our presence Colonel Roosevelt received tenders of support from men of wide political influence, men who will control delegates in the convention. Some of these men were progressives; others were 'near' progressives; several were reactionary sympathizers.
"To each and every such proposal Colonel Roosevelt replied substantially as stated above and added with equal emphasis and forceful sincerity that he was not in the remotest sense a candidate for the nomination and that he declared and deplored all such suggestion as were being made to him."

CRANE DESIRES ROOSEVELT

Author of Letter.Washington, Nov. 27.—W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts is the United States senator who wrote to Theodore Roosevelt offering the support of himself and of his friends in the event at Mr. Roosevelt desires to be a candidate for the presidency next year. This statement is made on the authority of a friend of Crane and Roosevelt who has personal knowledge of the correspondence which passed between them on this matter.
The disclosure of Senator Crane as author of the offer of political aid the former president has caused excitement among the politicians of the capital. The telephone wires in Washington and between here and New York and Boston have been busy with speculations of Republican party leaders concerning the effect the revelation will have on the country at large.

MUGGLED CHINESE IN CAR

Four Are Found in Rock Island Chi-

Declares Boer President Opposed Progress, Believed World Was Flat and Devil Had a Tail—Says Secretary of State Olney Caused Kruger to Commute Death Sentences of Americans for Participation in Jameson Raid.Boston, Nov. 27.—Released by time from an oath not to talk on South African affairs or reveal any of the "inside events" leading up to the Boer war for three years John Hays Hammond, who was conspicuous in that war, broke his silence for the first time at a dinner of the Clover club.Mr. Hammond said the Jameson raid was the result of the activities of a reform association formed at Johannesburg and consisting largely of Americans."I want especially," said Mr. Hammond, "to correct a misunderstanding.
It has been said we were acting under the British flag. That is false."Much sympathy has been wasted on Oom Paul Kruger. He was opposed to progress, believed the world was flat and that the devil had a tail.
His impositions were such as no man of the Anglo-Saxon race would have tolerated."The reform movement against Kruger was not an English movement.
Jameson came into the fight against our wishes and against the wishes of the British high commissioner. I sent word to him to go back and, when he persisted, the only thing to do was to bluff Kruger into believing that we had more arms than we really had.
We did so and Kruger sent over an olive branch to Johannesburg. They agreed to all but two things and that was that no contract should be accepted with a Catholic or a Jew. This we flatly refused."Kruger played false with the reform committee after the Jameson raid, broke all his promises and after he had obtained the arms in Johannesburg through Sir Hercules Robinson he arrested the entire committee."He gave the men to understand that if they pleaded guilty they would be let off with a fine. Instead they were sentenced to be hanged within twenty-four hours. An emphatic dispatch from Secretary Olney caused Kruger and the Boer council to hesitate and after an all night session the council voted to commute the sentences to life imprisonment."

Accident Occurs While Trying to Save Explosives.Cleveland, Nov. 27.—Six Florida wreckers were blown up while attempting to procure a box of explosives, part of the cargo of the steamer Prinz Joachim, which went ashore Nov. 22 at Atwood bay.This information was conveyed in a message from the Prinz Joachim, which was picked up by one of the wireless stations here.While the cargo of the Prinz Joachim was being jettisoned a swarm of wreckers lay about, watching an opportunity, according to their custom, to salvage any part of the cargo. A chance came when three boats almost simultaneously sped a floating box.
They made for it with all haste. There was a sharp struggle for the box.
Watchers aboard the Prinz Joachim then saw the water thrown high in the air by an explosion and thereafter nothing of the boats or men was to be seen.

at Bessemer, Mich.Bessemer, Mich., Nov. 27.—Two miners lost their lives and a third barely escaped the same fate when a cavein occurred in the Yale mine. Stanley Curran and Charles Donli were caught under the falling rock and entombed alive. After several hours' hard digging the two men were reached. Curran was dead when taken out. Donli died later.It is asserted that the mine was declared unsafe a long time ago and the authorities will investigate.

TWO GIRLS DIE IN CAVEIN

Collapsed Tunnel.Kansas City, Nov. 27.—When their hand save on the bank of the Kaw river in Kansas City, Kan., collapsed two little girls, Flossie and Ethel Hutchinson, fourteen and eleven years old, respectively, were killed; their sister Lydia, sixteen years old, was almost suffocated and Harold Hutchinson, a neighbor boy, was seriously injured.
That the latter two children did not meet the fate of the others was due to the heroic efforts of Lizzie Sparks, an eleven-year-old girl, who dug the sand away with her hands.

LORD CAMOYS.

English Nobleman Weds

LORD CAMOYS WEDS HEIRESS

of New York Marries.New York, Nov. 27.—Miss Mildred Sherman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman, heiress to many millions, was married to Lord Camoys, a young English nobleman. The bride's father, ill for some time, was wheeled in an invalid chair to the drawing room, where the ceremony was performed in the presence of only members of the bride's immediate family and the bridegroom's two brothers, Hugh and Edward Storr.The illness of Mr. Sherman, his strong desire to witness the wedding and the fear that he might not live another week are responsible for putting forward the marriage one week.STEPHENSON WILL
Large Sums of Money.Washington, Nov. 27.—With the declaration that no instances of vote buying were discovered but with words of censure for the use of large sums of money in his campaign the senate committee which investigated the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson is expected to report shortly after the opening of congress.Senator Stephenson, according to a well founded report here, will be declared fully entitled to his seat. The use of money in the Stephenson campaign was the result of the Wisconsin primary system, it was claimed in the hearings, and a condemnation of that system either in the committee's report or by members of the committee on the floor of the senate is now looked for.The committee's report is now being written; its submission to all the senators who heard the testimony is only a matter of a few days and it is predicted that it will be disposed of by the senate before the Lorimer case is tried.

Northwest Executives Will Be Guests
of Taft at Dinner Dec. 7.Washington, Nov. 27.—Governors Eberhart, Burke and Vessey and their associates from other Western states will be busy men on Dec. 7, the only day they are to spend in Washington on their Eastern trip. In the morning the governors will attend the meeting of the national rivers and harbors congress. At luncheon they will be guests of their state delegations at the Capitol and afterwards they will be guests of the Washington chamber of commerce when a committee will show them the city in automobiles. At night President Taft is to give a dinner in their honor. They will leave the city at midnight.

CUT GOVERNMENT EXPENSE

President Will Urge Economy in Message to Congress.Washington, Nov. 27.—Estimates of the money needed from congress to run the government machine for the fiscal year have been submitted to Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh.
The president expects to devote some space in his message to government economy and several months ago gave instructions to department heads to cut this year's estimates as much as possible.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Nov. 27.—Keir & Brown's store was broken into here the cash register rifled and furs to the value of $11,000 were stolen. The robbers, who are thought to be a gang of expert American crooks, made a clean getaway without leaving a clue.
The gang is believed to have robbed the Canadian Express company of the mail pouch worth $50,000 at Regina and also to have been implicated in the Saskatchewan robbery.CONGRESS IS

Hughes, Fairbanks and Roosevelt Mentioned by Republicans—Many Democratic Senators For Woodrow Wilson, Borah For Presidential Primaries.
Two Kansas City Prophets.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 27.—[Special.]— The hum of the congressional session is in the air. Incoming senators and representatives are getting ready for the busiest of all sessions, that which precedes a presidential campaign.
Not only have the members of congress to shape their policies so as to give the greatest possible advantage to their party, but they also want to make records which will elect them in the coming campaign.Therefore there is not only great interest in the important matters of legislation, but there is also a strong desire on the part of members to secure legislation for their constituents as a means of helping them in the elections. The men who are already on the ground are full of life and activity and have entered upon the advance work of the session with a great deal of vigor.Politics Prominent.
Naturally politics enters largely into the conversation of all the returning members. In fact, politics will rule the session to a great extent, and both parties will do their best to make capital for the campaign.What is most interesting in the present political discussion is that Republicans as well as Democrats are talking about different candidates. It has been assumed that no other man than Mr. Taft would have a look in at the next convention, but there has been a great deal of talk about other possibilities, not La Follette alone, who is an announced candidate, but the names of Hughes, Fairbanks, Roosevelt and others are heard in conversation.Has Senatorial Backing.
Certainly Governor Wilson of New Jersey cannot complain of his senatorial backing. Among his supporters are Senator Hoke Smith, the new senator from Georgia; Senator Myers of Montana, and it is said that Senator O'Gorman of New York favors the New Jersey governor. At least he is quoted as saying that the late elections in New Jersey have not hurt Wilson's chances.Chamberlain of Oregon is another supporter of Wilson, and Gore and Owens of Oklahoma are favoring him.
Other progressive Democrats are for the New Jersey governor when their favorite son candidates are out of the way.
John Sharp Williams has declared for Wilson, much to the surprise of a number of Democrats, for Williams virtually bequeathed the minority leadership in the house to Champ Clark.
It was supposed that he was very friendly to the speaker.Senators on National Committee.
Three senators are members of the Republican national committee, Crane of Massachusetts, Penrose of Pennsylvania and Borah of Idaho. It is quite possible that Borah will be the champion of Bourne's proposition to have presidential primaries adopted when the national committee meets here next month.Borah is committed to many of the progressive policies, including the primary system, for he has been the most earnest champion of election of senators by direct vote that the senate has seen. It was due to his hard work and persistence that the resolution for electing senators finally passed the senate.Take Your Choice.
W. R. Childs, postmaster at Kansas City, was in Washington recently and asserted that while Kansas is going to be a great battlefield next year the Republicans will win. Kansas City assumes to speak for Kansas at times.
It may be well to quote Judge Richard Higgins, also of Kansas City, who asserts that Kansas will surely go Democratic in the next election. The political claim agents are early in the field.Wastes No Time.
On the mantle behind Senator Bourne's desk in the senate office building are two or three boxes of crackers, raisins and shelled walnuts.
The senator is not making a pure food investigation, as it might seem, but he believes in wasting no time at lunch, so he eats crackers and the other articles while at his work. Generally he will interrupt his lunch to talk to a visitor, but he can dictate interviews to newspaper men and get away with his frugal repast at the same time.Waiting on Himself.
Much to the surprise of a number of persons, Senator Lodge was seen at a railroad office purchasing tickets. He stood in line and waited his turn like any other person who might be going to the Harvard commencement."If I had all the people about me that Lodge has," remarked one man, "I'd hang if I would stand in line or wait around to buy tickets. I'd send some one."Elephant Religion.
The natives of India believe that elephants have a religion and form of worship.

AROUSE TREATY SENTIMENT

Mass Meetings to Be Held in Favor of Pending Pact.Washington, Nov. 27.—Mass meetings in thirty important cities of the country during December and January to arouse sentiment in favor of the treaties between the United States and Great Britain and France, now pending, have been planned by the Citizens' National committee of New York, according to announcement.
The first meeting will be held in this city on Dec. 8 with President Taft as guest of honor and principal speaker. Senator Burton of Ohio will preside.ITALIAN SLAYS WIFE AND LOVER WITH AXEChops Off Heads of Couple on Finding Them Together.Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 27.—Tortured by the mental picture of his headless wife and her paramour, whom he killed, Pasquale Marchesi, twenty-seven years old, a merchant, went to a priest and confessed the double killing, which had not been discovered.
The young avenger of his honor was turned over to the police, who are closely guarding him for fear of possible mob violence.According to Marchesi he went home and found his wife Rosaria and his cousin and namesake occupying Mrs. Marchesi's bed chamber. The younger Marchesi, who was not of age, had been a favorite of the husband and the scene drove him mad, he said. Without allowing his presence to become known Marchesi went to a woodshed, procured an axe, crept to the bedroom and killed the two lovers, hewing off their heads.

other Hurt.San Francisco, Nov. 27.—Policeman Charles G. Castor is dead and Policeman Thomas Pinnelly is so badly wounded that there is little hope of his recovery as the result of an attempt to arrest Paulous Prandoegos, a Greek, at the ferry building.George Condos, a Greek restaurant keeper, was slightly wounded by Prandoegos.Prandoegos is said to be wanted on a charge of murder in Velley, Greece, and an attempt was being made to arrest him when the shooting occurred.

Quelling Disturbance.Muscatine, Ia., Nov. 27.—The first fatality of Muscatine's bitter labor war occurred when Patrolman Gerischer was shot through the head when he interfered with a party of men who had been drinking and were creating a disturbance on the street.Thomas Hoskins, a member of the local button workers' union, was arrested at Rock Island, Ill., charged with the murder of Gerischer, who died at Bellevue hospital several hours after he was shot.

Prison Authorities Fear He Is Nearing the End.Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27.—Charles W.
Morse, the New York convict-banker, who is seriously ill in the federal penitentiary here, suffered a severe re-lapse. Fears of death are entertained by the prison medical authorities.The relapse came after the decision to delay Morse's removal to the army hospital at Fort McPherson because of the severity of the weather. It is now a question as to whether Morse will live long enough to be transferred.Morse is reported to have been greatly pleased over the prospect of being removed to the hospital. Although he will be a prisoner there he will be relieved from the prison routine and restrictions and will be permitted to see his family and friends at any time.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The United States' trade with foreign countries has grown considerably this year compared with a year ago, according to statistics just issued. In exports the trade for the ten months ending with October increased $235,000,000, while the imports decreased $32,000,000. A balance in favor of the United States amounting to $401,500,000 existed Nov. 1.

Children Have Narrow Escape.

Milwaukee, Nov. 27.—Three children were overcome by smoke and rescued from the second floor of a burning building by firemen, when the home of Fred Wagner, Sr., caught fire. The oldest child, Fred, Jr., aged four years in the excitement attendant upon the fire had crawled under a bed and was found there unconscious.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 27.—Martin I.
Pierce, a newspaper man, was killed here while taking a cousin, Frederick C. Comstock of Milwaukee, to a cemtery to inspect a grave being prepared for Comstock's mother, who died here.
They were in an automobile and tried to run ahead of an interurban car.
The machine was demolished, but Comstock was uninjured.

Daughter of Irish Clergyman.

New York, Nov. 27.—Alice Tristram, thirty-eight years old, said to be the daughter of a prominent clergyman in Dublin, Ireland, committed suicide in the golf club house at Van Cortlandt park by drinking poison while sitting alone at a table.

Three Autoists Killed.

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—Three young men were killed and a girl was seri-

Driven Back With Considerable Loss.
General Wong, Second in Command
Ancient Capital of China.Nanking, Nov. 27.—After more than half a century of silence the hills overlooking the walled city of Nanking, the ancient capital of China, swarm with rebels determined to overthrow the last stronghold of the Manchus south of the Yangtze.From the Tiger hill fort for several hours big guns spoke repeatedly, while further up along the northeastern range from the top of Purple mountain overlooking the Ming tombs for a fifteen-mile semi-circle westward to the Yangtze smaller forts scattered shells into every section of the city.
So far as is known the casualty list is not large. General Wong, second in command of the defenders, is among those killed.The imperialists attempted a sortie, but were driven back with considerable losses. The Tiger hill batteries meanwhile were pouring shells into Lion hill and succeeded in silencing the Manchus batteries there.There was some sharp fighting at the eastern and southern gates. The imperialists fired upon a Red Cross train coming in on the railway. About 4,000 of General Chang's rawest recruits are now outside the city with machine guns, but a number have surrendered.The object of the first seizure of Tiger hill was shown by the early appearance of four rebel cruisers and later of other warships. A dozen torpedo boat destroyers and cruisers are lying menacingly near the city.The viceroy of Nanking and the Tartar general, in fear of General Chang, the imperialist commander, have taken refuge in the Japanese consulate, in which only the consul remains. He is the sole official representative of foreign interests now in Nanking. The consulate is well guarded by marines.

DIDN'T TRUST BANKS

H. W. Hazelton, an aged recluse, living at Los Angeles, who did not believe in banks or safe deposit boxes was robbed night before last of $150,000 in money, certificates and bonds, which he kept in a dresser drawer. There is little sympathy with people who are so fearful of national or state institutions, with depositors, who tempt thieves to enter their homes with hidden wealth.

Adepts, who make a business of burglary, who have made a study of crime, learn sooner or later in some way, of people who are suspected of keeping considerable sums of money or valuables, about their home or on their person, and this often leads not only to robbery, but murder. It is a dangerous thing, with so many unconscionable scoundrels at large, who plot and live on their fellows by either waylaying their victim or entering their homes, to carry much money or keep it in the home. The bank is the best place. The bank is the only safe and secure place, but there is every convenience for deposit as well as easily and quickly drawing the same when desirable.

Hazelton is lucky to escape with his life, even if he does not recover his valuables.—Atlantic City, N. J. Union.

Good Clothes and "Making Good" go together

Because this is true, we've selected Kuppenheimer Clothes as our standard.

They are standard inasmuch as they combine every desirable feature of every other line with an originality and distinctiveness all their own.

These clothes merit your approval; they gain and retain your confidence and good will; they are the way and means by which we are "making good" with the men of this town who know and appreciate correctness in dress.

The Fall stocks are resplendent with the choicest products of the great

House of Kuppenheimer

—they're larger and better than any clothing stock ever shown in this section; they include every style, model and fabric that is deservedly popular; you'll find here and now just the garment that your person demands—that your mind delights in.

We find it difficult to enumerate any particular special offering—they are all "SPECIAL"—but here's a combination that you will appreciate;—

Let us show you the latest in dress shirts with collars to match, the new tan button shoes, rough finished hats or high collar sweaters. Many new things.

THANKSGIVING DAY;
ITS APPRECIATIONS.

Unthankfulness Is Dangerous.
The Thankful Are Blessed.

Pastor Russell Says That All Should Join With the Psalmist David, "Oh, Give Thanks Unto the Lord, For He Is Good: His Mercy Endureth Forever."—Psalm cxxxvi, 1.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26th.
—Pastor Russell
of the London and Brooklyn Tabernacles preached twice here today.
We give a synopsis of his discourses on Thanksgiving from the text above quoted.

With more cause than ever for thankfulness, Christendom is losing the sentiment of gratitude to God, and Thanksgiving Day is to many merely a holiday. In religious matters in general, Christendom is rapidly approaching the conditions prophesied by St. Paul, when men would preserve the form of god-liness but deny its power. (II Timothy iii, 5.) The cause of this the Pastor traced to the increasing intelligence of our day which, along religious lines, has cut loose from the Bible and proportionately cut loose from the true God.

Higher Critics, not content with the rejection of the creeds of the Dark Ages, have attacked the Bible, prejudiced against it by the inconsistencies of the creeds. Thinking to render assistance to humanity and to the Truth, they have for fifty years been quietly and successfully engaged in undermining the faith of Christendom in the Bible as a Divine Revelation. They claim for themselves a similar inspiration to that of the Apostles, while they ridicule the thought that holy Prophets of old spake and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit of God—II Peter i, 21.

Evolution and Higher Criticism.
Rejecting the Bible as a special Divine Revelation from a personal God, the next step of the Higher Critics was an easy one—to proclaim nature the god and creator of all things—an impersonal god. Thus they were just in line for Darwin's theory of Evolution—that nature is god and work is the law of nature—the survival of the fittest—and the fittest the most pugnacious and overbearing, and selfish and scheming.

Thus we have gradually reached the place where the masses of Christendom doubt the existence of a personal God, and are inclined to believe in a blind, brute force—a nature-god—and to hope that by some process of evolution their children's children, in the far hereafter, may attain to something better than the present; but they see not even the assurance of a future life for themselves, any more than for the brute creation.

Unthankful, Unholy, Covenant-Breakers.

This explains to us why the masses feel little interest in Thanksgiving Day, except as a holiday. They have lost their God—the living and true God—a Heavenly Father. Under these circumstances, declared Pastor Russell, it is not strange that they are unbelievers—that Thanksgiving is becoming a mere formality, that the churches are nearly empty and the prisons overflowing and many of the world pleasure-mad. St. Paul's words, "without God and having no hope in the world," surely fit the majority of Christendom today. These conditions breed the reverse of thankfulness, namely dissatisfaction. Thus we see the world enjoying blessings as never before, and discontented as never before. The opening of the eyes of understanding to the fact that our race is one, and that the blessings of earth belong equally to all, is now coming to men. These are great truths. With this knowledge should come an appreciation of the Divine supervision of the earth's affairs, and a knowledge of the Divine intention to rectify all the inequalities and inequities of the present time in a future Age.

Since the desire of all mankind is happiness, our college men are un-philosophical in proclaiming a theory which is destroying happiness, and which threatens shortly to destroy our civilization through anarchy.

What Unthankfulness Costs.

We may be sure that unthankfulness today will bring upon man, naturally, a great curse—a great calamity.
We see it coming! Unbelief in God means more trust in self—means more discontent—means strife to attain the things coveted—means anarchy—means the disruption of our present social system, as the Word of God foretells. (Daniel xii, 1.) Read your convenience the Apostle's argument on this subject.—Romans i.

The silver lining to the dark cloud is in the Divine promise of rescue, after the world shall have learned a lesson for eternity. The Scriptures assure us that the time of trouble and anarchy will be followed by the establishment of Messiah's glorious Kingdom—the binding of Satan—the letting loose of every good influence and the true knowledge of God—the rising of the Sun of Righteousness with healing in its beams. That glorious time must be waited for.

Worry is one of the few things that we can lay down a law against, as it is absolutely poisonous. Unlike other poisons, it does not stimulate, but is a depressing, paralyzing and breaking up poison. It is a sheer waste of energy, and life would become much more bearable if only people would take things philosophically, as a matter of course.— Eustace Miles.

THANKSGIVING DAY; ITS APPRECIATIONS.

Unthankfulness Is Dangerous.

Pastor Russell Says That All Should Join With the Psalmist David, "Oh, Give Thanks Unto the Lord, For He Is Good: His Mercy Endureth Forever."—Psalm cxxxvi, 1.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 26th.—Pastor Russell of the London and Brooklyn Tabernacles preached twice here today. We give a synopsis of his discourse on Thanksgiving from the text above quoted.

With more cause than ever for thankfulness, Christendom is losing the sentiment of gratitude to God, and Thanksgiving Day is to many merely a holiday. In religious matters in general, Christendom is rapidly approaching the conditions prophesied by St. Paul, when men would preserve the form of godliness but deny its power. (II Timothy iii, 5.) The cause of this the Pastor traced to the increasing intelligence of our day which, along religious lines, has cut loose from the Bible and proportionately cut loose from the true God.

Higher Critics, not content with the rejection of the creeds of the Dark Ages, have attacked the Bible, prejudiced against it by the inconsistencies of the creeds. Thinking to render assistance to humanity and to the Truth, they have for fifty years been quietly and successfully engaged in undermining the faith of Christendom in the Bible as a Divine Revelation. They claim for themselves a similar inspiration to that of the Apostles, while they ridicule the thought that holy Prophets of old spoke and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit of God—II Peter i, 21.

Evolution and Higher Criticism.

Rejecting the Bible as a special Divine Revelation from a personal God, the next step of the Higher Critics was an easy one—to proclaim nature the god and creator of all things—an impersonal god. Thus they were just in line for Darwin's theory of Evolution—that nature is god and work is the law of nature—the survival of the fittest—and the fittest the most pugnacious and overbearing, and selfish and scheming.

Thus we have gradually reached the place where the masses of Christendom doubt the existence of a personal God, and are inclined to believe in a blind, brute force—a nature-god—and to hope that by some process of evolution their children's children, in the far hereafter, may attain to something better than the present; but they see not even the assurance of a future life for themselves, any more than for the brute creation.

Unthankful, Unholy, Covenant-Breakers.

This explains to us why the masses feel little interest in Thanksgiving Day, except as a holiday. They have lost their God—the living and true God—a Heavenly Father. Under these circumstances, declared Pastor Russell, it is not strange that they are unbelievers—that Thanksgiving is becoming a mere formality, that the churches are nearly empty and the prisons overflowing and many of the world pleasure-mad. St. Paul's words, "without God and having no hope in the world," surely fit the majority of Christendom today. These conditions breed the reverse of thankfulness, namely dissatisfaction. Thus we see the world enjoying blessings as never before, and discontented as never before. The opening of the eyes of understanding to the fact that our race is one, and that the blessings of earth belong equally to all, is now coming to men. These are great truths. With this knowledge should come an appreciation of the Divine supervision of the earth's affairs, and a knowledge of the Divine intention to rectify all the inequalities and in-equities of the present time in a future Age.

Since the desire of all mankind is happiness, our college men are unphilosophical in proclaiming a theory which is destroying happiness, and which threatens shortly to destroy our civilization through anarchy.

What Unthankfulness Costs.

We may be sure that unthankfulness today will bring upon man, naturally, a great curse—a great calamity. We see it coming! Unbelief in God means more trust in self—means more discontent—means strife to attain the things coveted—means anarchy—means the disruption of our present social system, as the Word of God foretells. (Daniel xii, 1.) Read your convenience the Apostle's argument on this subject.—Romans i.

The silver lining to the dark cloud is in the Divine promise of rescue, after the world shall have learned a lesson for eternity. The Scriptures assure us that the time of trouble and anarchy will be followed by the establishment of Messiah's glorious Kingdom—the blinding of Satan—the letting loose of every good influence and the true knowledge of God—the rising of the Sun of Righteousness with healing in its beams. That glorious time must be waited for.

POISON OF WORRY

Worry is one of the few things that we can lay down a law against, as it is absolutely poisonous. Unlike other poisons, it does not stimulate, but is a depressing, paralyzing and breaking up poison. It is a sheer waste of energy, and life would become much more bearable if only people would take things philosophically, as a matter of course.—Eustace Miles.

WHAT YOU MAKE IT.

EAST or west or north or south, Anywhere you chance to stray,
You will find the people kind
If you greet them just halfway.
There is not the different types, Chilly there and pleasant here,
On yourself you must depend For the warmth or lack of cheer.

If you wear a frozen face As you pass along the street In a city new and strange That's the kind that you will meet.
If you greet them with a smile And the twinkle of an eye Smiles will greet you in return From the people passing by.

Do not be afraid to shed Sunshine up and down the land.
Do not be afraid to reach To the world a friendly hand.
Other folks appreciate Friendly feelings and the true Touch of human fellowship Every bit as much as you.

Take your atmosphere along
As you wander to and fro.
They'll be glad to see you come And be sorry when you go.
If you give the gladdest grip In the land where you sojourn Do not for a minute doubt You will get it in return.

Needed Expansion.
"I am looking for a job as bill collector."
"Do you think that will be pleasant work?"
"Not specially, but I have run out of excuses myself to hand to collectors and I want to study the business from the other end for awhile for the purpose of picking up hints."

"Yes," said the man with the wide vest, "I don't like to brag of myself, but I was regarded as a precocious child. At the age of ten I wrote poetry that grown men might have been proud to have written."

"I did some swell writing, too, at that age," said the coarse person who had not been suspected by his friends of having artistic leanings.

"And what did your infantile pen produce?"

"Oh, I wrote excuses to the teacher so plain that you would have thought my mother had written them."

Proved His Shoveling Ability.
"You didn't land your job as janitor in the city hall?"

"No."

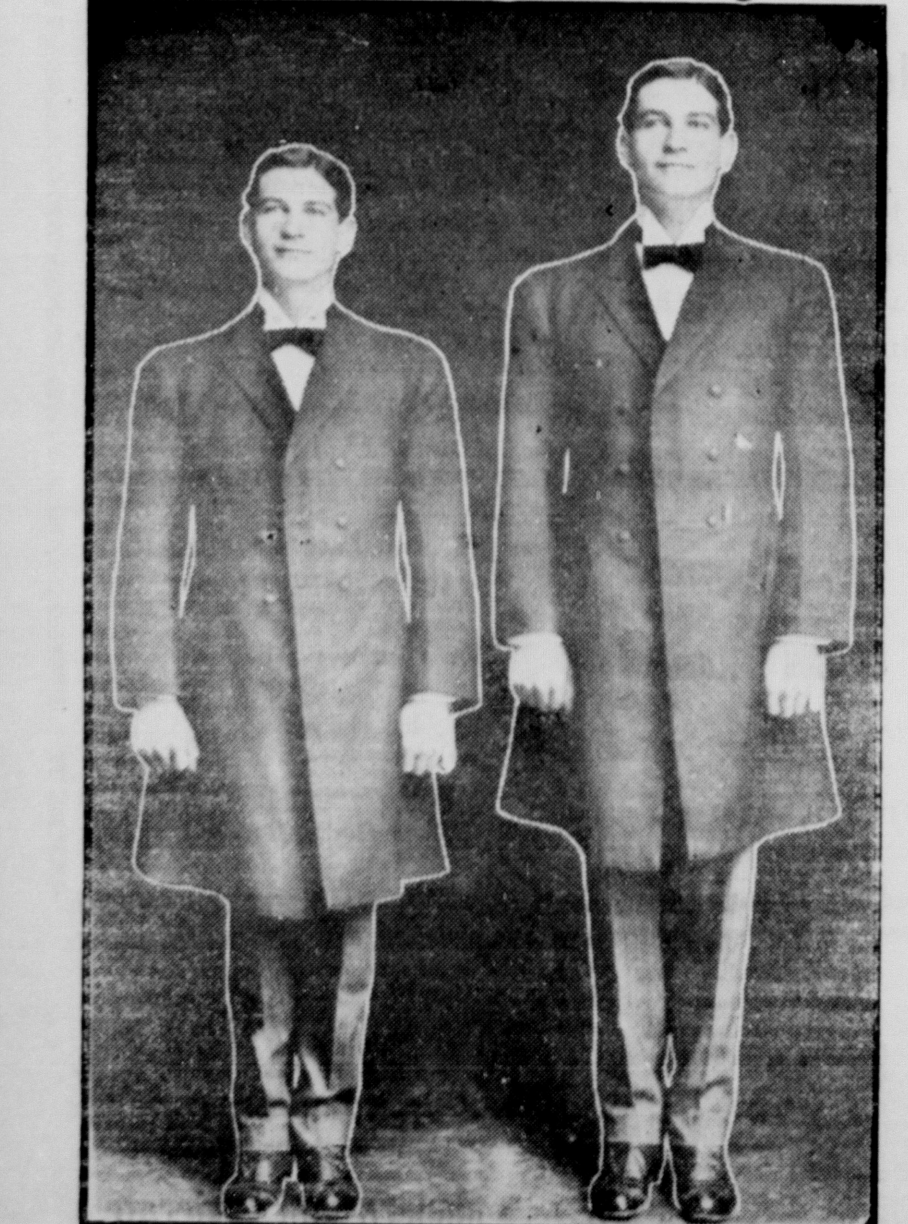

"Why not?"

"Civil service examination."

"Did that let you out?"

"Yes; the other fellow knew how many moons Jupiter had."

A Valuable Suit of Clothes

By HUNTINGTON JOHNSTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When I was eighteen years old I was walking one day in the country by a river. The weather was hot and the cool water tempting. I took off my clothes and jumped in for a bath. After swimming around for awhile I was about to come out when I saw a youngster near my own age putting on my clothes. I called to him to stop, but he kept on till he had completely dressed himself in my apparel, when he turned to me and said hurriedly:

"I'm an escaped jailbird. This is the first lawbreaking act I ever committed in my life. I was falsely accused of burglary. It was a case of mistaken identity, the real burglar resembling me, and a woman who swore against me was dead certain I was the man she had seen leaving her house. I was sent up for ten years and have served nearly one. Just now I found an opportunity to walk out of jail unobserved, an opportunity that wouldn't happen once in a hundred years. An overcoat lay on a chair, and I put it on, concealing all but the stripes on my trousers, which I rolled up. I've been out only a few minutes. I'd rather die than go back. If you'll not peach on me I'll make it up to you some day."

I was young, and the fellow seemed honest. I asked him what he wished me to do, and he said to stay where I was till some one came to hunt him, then tell him what had happened and send his pursuer off in the wrong direction. He looked at me so appealingly that I couldn't resist. I told him to go ahead and to communicate with me later as to what success he had. I had only time to tell him where to write me when we heard a horse galloping, and the jailbird dashed away.

Presently a man in a buggy dashed by, and he saw me and reined in. He asked me if I had seen a man in

"WHAT'S THIS FOR?" I ASKED.

stripes go by, and I told him I had. "I'm interested in him," I added, "since he has taken my clothes."

"Which way did he go?"

"I was swimming about in here. You can see it's a mighty hot day and—"

"Never mind that. Tell me where he has gone."

"While I was swimming I saw a fellow putting on my clothes—"

"And throw away his stripes?"

"I didn't see him do that, but I suppose he did."

"Tell me the way he went. Hurry up."

"You can't get him."

"Why not?"

"There's no bridge."

"Did he cross the river?"

"Why, you see my clothes were on the other side. He pulled off my stripes, swam across and took my clothes from over there."

The man uttered a grunt, whipped up his horse and drove on. There was a bridge a little farther up, and in a few minutes I heard his horse's hoofs sounding on its floor. Others from the penitentiary, which was near by, followed, but I hid under some overhanging trees, with only my head out of water, and they all passed without seeing me. Finally a boy came along, and I paid him a quarter to go to my home and tell my mother to send me a full set of clothing by him.

A month after this I received a letter from my jailbird. He said that I must have kept my word, for had not misdirected his pursuers he would certainly have been taken. He said he regretted he couldn't send pay for the clothes, for he hadn't the money. He couldn't send the clothes, for he had no others.

I was just double the age I had been when I laid myself liable to prison by helping a prisoner to escape when one morning, while I was sitting at my desk waiting for a sheriff to serve an execution on my office furniture, a man came in and asked for me.

"I'm your man," I said. "Are you the sheriff?"

The visitor looked at me curiously. "Sheriff?" he said. "What does the sheriff want with you?"

"To take this furniture. Everything else has gone, and this goes today."

"What do you owe?"

"I owe the man who has levied on this $765."

My visitor took out a pocket check book, wrote a check for the amount payable to me and handed it to me.

"What's this for?" I asked.

"A suit of clothes and interest."

"Explain."

"Do you remember going swimming eighteen years ago?"

"And losing my clothes? Of course I do."

"I'm the man that took 'em," he said, lowering his voice.

"You don't mean it?"

I took him into my private office and told him the story of my financial misfortunes. I owed $25,000 that I could not pay and must lose a business that I had been many years building up. Within a few months I should be able to collect debts due me that would enable me to pay a part of this amount, but even could I arrange for an extension on the balance I would have no capital with which to resume business.

He listened to my story and when I had finished told me his own experience since he had left me a fugitive from justice. He said that he had concealed himself so near me that he had heard every word I had said to his pursuers, and consequently he knew how well I had stood by him.

"Had it not been for your suit of clothes and for your sending the penitentiary officials on a wrong track," he added, "I should have been returned to prison. What a frightful difference between that and what has followed! Had I been taken my fate would have come out of prison broken in health, in spirits and in pride. Very likely I should not have had the strength and courage to start in for an honest pursuit. No one would have given me employment as an ex-convict, and if I had obtained it as one in good standing my record after so long a confinement in prison would surely sooner or later be known. I should therefore have been obliged to make a series of starts, to be followed by as many setbacks, and my pluck would never have stood such a strain."

"I had heard a great deal about the opportunities for advancement afforded in the west and determined to go there. The next night, guided by the north star, I traveled westward, hiding again by day. I knew the telegraph and the newspapers would reach out to a long distance and many persons would be watching for me. Therefore I dared not travel openly until I had reached a point far distant from the prison."

"For three nights I traveled in this way, eating nothing but some berries, for so great was my terror at being returned to the penitentiary that I dare not ask for food. I got plenty of water, and once coming upon a cow which had strayed into a wood I passed through I milked her. She furnished me with strength that lasted me for another day. On the fourth day early in the morning on approach of a town I met a boy delivering papers. I asked him to let me read one of them and saw an item stating that I had not yet been caught, but the police were on my track and were sure of landing me within a few days."

"The truth was that they had no idea of where I was and only made the statement to cover their inability to find me. But the statement filled me with fresh dread, and instead of entering the town I went again into hiding. Later, meeting a tramp, he made some signs to me, supposing me to be one of the fraternity. But I did not understand them. However, he gave me a pointer, and after that I traveled as a tramp."

"But since my adventures till I reached the place in the west, which I made my home would fill a book, I will pass over them and give you the summary. I appeared there one morning and went from store to store, fac-

Be Sure of Your Baking

When you put a baking into the oven, are you always sure it will come out right? Are you sure it will be light and fluffy and tastily baked—or will it be a flat, soggy failure?

The whole thing hinges on the baking powder you use. So what's the use of taking chances in baking, when with you can always be sure that every baking will be successful? Failure simply means time lost, materials wasted and the whole baking to be done over—and yet you take that chance whenever you don't use Calumet. For Calumet alone is unfailing in good results—Calumet alone guarantees success. Use Calumet and be sure.

Then you can bake with more certainty of good results. The baking will be more uniformly raised—lighter—tastier—more wholesome, because the materials in Calumet are so perfectly adapted to all baking requirements and then so carefully proportioned that failures are almost impossible.

"Had it not been for my vow with regard to you, doubtless I would have spent my money as I earned it. As it was, my whole mind was bent on my purpose of repaying you for bringing about that enormous difference which exists between a jailbird and a respectable man. As soon as I had saved a hundred dollars my employer pointed out a way for its investment, and, having once acquired a taste for rolling up money, I never lagged in it. For several years I have been able to repay you for your kindness, but it is only lately that I got on your track."

My jailbird produced $50,000, which he put into my business, becoming my partner. I soon discovered that he possessed rare business talents and submitted to his guidance. We are getting rich, and my partner is greatly respected. But I don't tell any one that he is wanted for breaking jail

He looked at me so appealingly that I couldn't resist. I told him to go ahead and to communicate with me later as to what success he had. I had only time to tell him where to write me when we heard a horse galloping, and the jailbird darted away.

Presently a man in a buggy dashed by, and he saw me and reined in. He asked me if I had seen a man in not misdirected his pursuers he would certainly have been taken. He said he regretted he couldn't send pay for the clothes, for he hadn't the money. He couldn't send the clothes, for he had no others.

I was just double the age I had been when I hid myself liable to prison by helping a prisoner to escape when one morning, while I was sitting at my desk waiting for a sheriff to serve an execution on my office furniture, a man came in and asked for me.

"I'm your man," I said. "Are you the sheriff?"

The visitor looked at me curiously. "Sheriff?" he said. "What does the sheriff want with you?"

"To take this furniture. Everything else has gone, and this goes today."

"What do you owe?"

"I owe the man who has levied on this $705."

My visitor took out a pocket check book, wrote a check for the amount payable to me and handed it to me. "What's this for?" I asked.

"Explain."

"Do you remember going swimming eighteen years ago?"

"And losing my clothes? Of course I do."

"I'm the man that took 'em," he said, lowering his voice.

"You don't mean it?"

I took him into my private office and told him the story of my financial misfortunes. I owed $25,000 that I could not pay and must lose a business that I had been many years building up. Within a few months I should be able to collect debts due me that would enable me to pay a part of this amount, but even could I arrange for an extension on the balance I would have no capital with which to resume business.

He listened to my story and when I had finished told me his own experience since he had left me a fugitive from justice. He said that he had concealed himself so near me that he had heard every word I had said to his pursuers, and consequently he knew how well I had stood by him. "Had it not been for your suit of clothes and for your sending the penitentiary officials on a wrong track," he added, "I should have been returned to prison. What a frightful difference between that and what has followed! Had I been taken my fate would have been sealed. I should have come out of prison broken in health, in spirits and in pride. Very likely I should not have had the strength and courage to start in for an honest pursuit. No one would have given me employment as an ex-convict, and if I had obtained it as one in good standing my record after so long a confinement in prison would surely sooner or later be known. I should therefore have been obliged to make a series of starts, to be followed by as many setbacks, and my pluck would never have stood such a strain."

"As it was, when I heard you send my pursuers across the river after me I made a resolution. I vowed that if I made good my escape and could lose my identity as a convict I would devote all my time till I should be double the age I was then in heaping up the wherewithal to repay you for turning the scale from misery to comfort."

"I had heard a great deal about the opportunities for advancement afforded in the west and determined to go there. The next night, guided by the north star, I traveled westward, hiding again by day. I knew the telegraph and the newspapers would reach out to a long distance and many persons would be watching for me. Therefore I dared not travel openly until I had reached a point far distant from the prison."

"For three nights I traveled in this way, eating nothing but some berries, for so great was my terror at being returned to the penitentiary that I dare not ask for food. I got plenty of water, and once coming upon a cow which had strayed into a wood I passed through I milked her. She furnished me with strength that lasted me for another day. On the fourth day early in the morning on approaching a town I met a boy delivering papers. I asked him to let me read one of them and saw an item stating that I had not yet been caught, but the police were on my track and were sure of landing me within a few days."

"The truth was that they had no idea of where I was and only made the statement to cover their inability to find me. But the statement filled me with fresh dread, and instead of entering the town I went again into hiding. Later, meeting a tramp, he made some signs to me, supposing me to be one of the fraternity. But I did not understand them. However, he gave me a pointer, and after that I traveled as a tramp."

"But since my adventures till I reached the place in the west, which I made my home would fill a book, I will pass over them and give you the summary. I appeared there one morning and went from store to store, fac-

"Which way did he go?"

"I was swimming about in here. You can see it's a mighty hot day and"—

"Never mind that. Tell me where he has gone."

"While I was swimming I saw a fellow putting on my clothes."

"And throw away his stripes?"

"I didn't see him do that, but I suppose he did."

"Tell me the way he went. Hurry up."

"You can't get him."

"Why not?"

"There's no bridge."

"Did he cross the river?"

"Why, you see my clothes were on the other side. He pulled off his stripes, swam across and took my clothes from over there."

The man uttered a grunt, whipped up his horse and drove on. There was a bridge a little farther up, and in a few minutes I heard his horse's hoofs sounding on its floor. Others from the penitentiary, which was near by, followed, but I hid under some overhanging trees, with only my head out of water, and they all passed without seeing me. Finally a boy came along, and I paid him a quarter to go to my home and tell my mother to send me a full set of clothing by him.

A month after this I received a letter from my jailbird. He said that I must have kept my word, for had not misdirected his pursuers he would certainly have been taken. He said he regretted he couldn't send pay for the clothes, for he hadn't the money. He couldn't send the clothes, for he had no others.

I was just double the age I had been when I hid myself liable to prison by helping a prisoner to escape when one morning, while I was sitting at my desk waiting for a sheriff to serve an execution on my office furniture, a man came in and asked for me.

"To take this furniture. Everything else has gone, and this goes today."

"What do you owe?"

Be Sure of Your Baking

When you put a baking into the oven, are you always sure it will come out right? Are you sure it will be light and fluffy and tastily baked—or will it be a flat, soggy failure?

The whole thing hinges on the baking powder you use. So what's the use of taking chances in baking, when with you can always be sure that every baking will be successful? Failure simply means time lost, materials wasted and the whole baking to be done over—and yet you take that chance whenever you don't use Calumet. For Calumet alone is unfailing in good results—Calumet alone guarantees success. Use Calumet and be sure.

Then you can bake with more certainty of good results. The baking will be more uniformly raised—lighter—tastier—more wholesome, because the materials in Calumet are so perfectly adapted to all baking requirements and then so carefully proportioned that failures are almost impossible.

Calumet shows a great saving in price over "trust" brands—and is much more economical in use than cheap, "big-can" brands.

tory to factory, hunting for work. One kindly old gentleman seeing that I was worn out bodily took me in and gave me food and work. I passed under an assumed name and soon regained my strength.

"Had it not been for my vow with regard to you, doubtless I would have spent my money as I earned it. As it was, my whole mind was bent on my purpose of repaying you for bringing about that enormous difference which exists between a jailbird and a respectable man. As soon as I had saved a hundred dollars my employer pointed out a way for its investment, and, having once acquired a taste for rolling up money, I never flagged in it. For several years I have been able to repay you for your kindness, but it is only lately that I got on your track."

My jailbird produced $50,000, which he put into my business, becoming my partner. I soon discovered that he possessed rare business talents and submitted to his guidance. We are getting rich, and my partner is greatly respected. But I don't tell any one that he is wanted for breaking jail

EPISCOPAL ENTERTAINMENT

Miss Nina Blackburn to Appear Under Auspices of Vestrymen of St. Paul's Church

Appearing under the auspices of the vestrymen of St. Paul's Episcopal church Miss Nina Blackburn, the famous dramatic reader, of Minneapolis, will give an entertainment at the Citizens State bank hall on Friday evening, December 1. Following the literary program there will be a social dance.

Miss Blackburn is a child impersonator, monologist, dramatic reader and character artist. Winthrop Chamberlin, the dramatic editor of the Minneapolis Journal says: "Effervescent youth, an attractive personality, a charming manner, a clear and flexible voice—all these qualities ruled by a quick and intuitive intelligence—combine to make Miss Nina Blackburn one of the most effective readers. She possesses, besides these, that subtle and indefinable, but unmistakable quality known as personal magnetism. It enables her without conscious effort to enlist an audience under her banner at the outset. Her undoubted power of impersonation gives the final touch of genuineness to her work."

The Minneapolis Tribune said: "Miss Blackburn as a reader, is one of the best in the Northwest, and her selections were a decided success."

The St. Paul Dispatch said: Miss Blackburn, of Minneapolis, charmed the association with her readings and simply carried the audience off its feet."

The Annandale Advocate said: Miss Edna Blackburn gave us a most excellent entertainment of her readings. Her stage presence is simply wonderful for so young a girl, and the Improvement Club were highly delighted with her effort, and will recommend her to any organization who want a pleasing and talented reader."

The ladies of the M. C. are planning a piano benefit recital for the evening of Dec. 4 at Elks hall. Please keep this date open, as it will be an occasion of pleasure and profit.

EPISCOPAL ENTERTAINMENT

Miss Nina Blackburn to Appear Under Auspices of Vestrymen of St. Paul's Church

Appearing under the auspices of the vestrymen of St. Paul's Episcopal church Miss Nina Blackburn, the famous dramatic reader, of Minneapolis, will give an entertainment at the Citizens State bank hall on Friday evening, December 1. Following the literary program there will be a social dance.

Miss Blackburn is a child impersonator, monologist, dramatic reader and character artist. Winthrop Chamberlin, the dramatic editor of the Minneapolis Journal says: "Effervescent youth, an attractive personality, a charming manner, a clear and flexible voice—all these qualities ruled by a quick and intuitive intelligence—combine to make Miss Nina Blackburn one of the most effective readers. She possesses, besides these, that subtle and indefinable, but unmistakable quality known as personal magnetism. It enables her without conscious effort to enlist an audience under her banner at the outset. Her undoubted power of impersonation gives the final touch of genuineness to her work."

The Minneapolis Tribune said:
"Miss Blackburn as a reader, is one of the best in the Northwest, and her selections were a decided success."

The St. Paul Dispatch said: Miss Blackburn, of Minneapolis, charmed the association with her readings and simply carried the audience off its feet."

The Annandale Advocate said: Miss Edna Blackburn gave us a most excellent entertainment of her readings. Her stage presence is simply wonderful for so young a girl, and the Improvement Club were highly delighted with her effort, and will recommend her to any organization who want a pleasing and talented reader."

The ladies of the M. C. are planning a piano benefit recital for the evening of Dec. 4 at Elks hall. Please keep this date open, as it will be an occasion of pleasure and profit.

LAUGHTER.

"He who laughs," said the mother of Goethe, "can commit no deadly sin." Sterne declares that every laugh lengthens our lease of life. Even the cold and cynical Carlyle declares, in his extreme fashion, that "no man who has heartily and wholly laughed can be altogether irremediably depraved," and Sydney Smith said, "God has given us wit and humor and brightness and laughter and perfume to enliven the days of man's pilgrimage and to charm his pained steps over the burning marl."

Having a Hard Time.

"Here I've been running for years,"
said the hall clock, "and I haven't moved an inch. I wouldn't mind that so much, but every evening about 8:30
the young lady of the family turns me back because she says I'm too fast,
and then in the morning the old man comes along and grumbles because I'm too slow."

Not Crazy.

"You were just crazy to marry me, weren't you, dear?"
"No; just foolish,"—Houston Post.

A Household Medicine

That stops coughs quickly and cures colds is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Mrs. Anna Pelzer, 2526 Jefferson St., So. Omaha, Neb., says:
"I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as a sure cure for coughs and colds. It cured my daughter of a bad cold and my neighbor, Mrs. Benson, cured herself and her whole family with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Everyone in our neighborhood speaks highly of it." For sale by all druggists.

Ruins of an Ancient City.

Adjoining Lake Titicaca, in Peru, lie the ruins of a great city whose origin was as much a matter of conjecture 800 years ago as it is today.
The stone walls of the largest buildings were of excellent workmanship
and the gateways were elaborately carved. Evidence in abundance exists that the inhabitants were skilled masons. At present the region is cold and arid and entirely incapable of supporting cereals. It is inhabited by a few hardy mountaineers. It is evident that the climate is entirely different from what it was when the plateau was the center of a large population.

No Food at All.

"Lady," began Hungry Higgins, "I'd
thank yer fur a meal."
"Ah," exclaimed the bright housekeeper, "you're one of those after-dinner speakers."
"Not exactly, lady, or I wouldn't be so hungry. I ain't got so much as a chestnut about me."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Not Charged.

"Pardon me," said the smiling customer, "but is this mineral water charged?"
"Not any," replied the fair girl at the counter. "You pay the cashier."—Baltimore News.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.
So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of advice, "Write something."
"But," she protested by letter, "I already have done that, and it hasn't been printed."
"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration with which we have nothing to do."

TRUTH.

Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

Expert Witnesses.

A man appeared in the courts not long ago in Paris charged with insulting the police in the execution of their duty. He denied having done anything of the kind, but the police brought two witnesses into court to prove that he had not only been extremely rude, but had also attempted to strike the policeman who arrested him. The two witnesses were called. The first, who had "heard the insult," was an old man of eighty. He was stone deaf and could not hear the judge's questions.
The second, who had seen the attempted assault, was an old lady. She was so blind that she had to be led to the witness bar. The prisoner was acquitted.—Paris Cor. London Express.

Mysterious.

"That was a mysterious robbery the other day," said Smith to Jones.
"Why, I don't see what mystery
there was about it," remarked Jones.
"The detectives caught the thieves the same day."
"Yes," returned the first speaker,
"that's what I said."—London Answers.

Queer.

Towne—My wife never likes me to refer to her age. Browne—My wife's funny that way too. She doesn't want me to remember her age, and yet she gets mad if I forget her birthday.— Catholic Standard and Times.

A Mail Carrier's Load

Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Dachren, mail carrier at Atchinson, Kas., says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back.
Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increased.
Some time ago, I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever." For sale by all druggists. mw

The Common People in Spain.
Spain is one of the most illiterate countries of the civilized world, yet also one of the best educated, unless education be merely that mass of undigested and commonly misapplied information absorbed within four walls, says Henry A. Frank in "Four Months Afoot in Spain." Few men have a more exact knowledge, a more solid footing on the everyday earth, than the peasant, the laborer, the muleteer of Spain. One does not marvel merely at the fluent, powerful, entirely grammatical language of these unlettered fellows, but at the sound basic wisdom that stands forth in their every sentence.

For Cramps.

A piece of old fashioned candle wick worn around the leg in the garter place next to the skin will prevent or cure cramp in the calf of the leg or in the foot. I have proved this by personal experience. I believe this would prove effectual in preventing swimmers' cramp. Those liable to cramp while in the water would be wise to try it. Cotton batting wrapped around the body from the armpits downward saved the life of a man suffering agony from painters' cramp. It gave instant relief.—National Magazine.

Boston's Streets.

"Where can I get a car that will take me to the South station?" asked a lady of a Boston policeman.
"Right here, ma'am," he answered courteously. "Any one of these cars that passes will take ye."
"But the cars go both ways on this street. Which way does the car go that I must take?"
"Well, as to that, 'twill make no difference which way the car goes, 'twill take ye there just the same."—New York Press.

A Grim Relief.

Collectors gather articles more or less interesting, but probably few go in for such bulky objects as those chosen by a distinguished Britisher.
Old doors are the object of his desire.
His doors come from old houses, castles and abbeys of historical interest.
Some time ago he obtained at considerable cost a door through which during the French revolution Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday, Danton
and Robespierre passed on their way to the guillotine.

Stopping a Train.

Of the informalities of railway traveling in Scotland half a century ago Dr. John Ker gives some instances in his "Memories of the Past." "At Orkney, a siding on the Banff branch line," he wrote, "I was instructed to go to this siding, and, as the train approached, to set light to a newspaper or any other material that would make a good blaze and the train would stop.
The night was dark and windy, and I failed to set fire to the newspaper, but a stentorian shout had the same effect, and I was taken aboard."

Sure Sign.

"I wonder if Maude and Jack have broken."
"What makes you suspect it?"
"I saw him smoking a pipe yesterday instead of a cigar."
"Then they have broken—or married."

An Obvious Fraud.

"That English lord is an impostor."
"How did you find it out?"
"Simpson sprung a new story at the club last night, and the fellow saw the point at once."

How He Fell.

"They killed him by kindness."
"Ah, dyspepsia is a terrible disease, isn't it?"

No Trick at All.

I really think that it would be An easy thing to do—
To guess the riddle of the sphinx
If I the answer knew.

Creating a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have varied at different times.
Thus, a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder were at one period given to the recipient of the dignity. A blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans, and this was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of
the sword on the shoulder of the knight, a ceremony which has survived, with some modification, to the present day.

She Was.

A very loyal lady of English birth once asked an American dame in England whether they had any painters in America.
"Oh, yes," said the American, "you have some of them here—Sargent and Abbey and Mrs. Merritt and McClure
Hamilton."
"Dear me," said the English lady,
"you'll be claiming Whistler next!"

Uncertainty of Soldiering.

"Too bad about Lord Chawlin, isn't it?"
"What's happened to him?"
"Why, he's had to leave the guards, don't you know?"
"And what have they done with him?"
"Put him in a common fighting regiment, by Jove!"—London Mail.

He Knew Women.

"Sir," says the inventor to the capitalist, "I have invented a corkscrew that will sell on sight to every woman in this land. I want you to back me."
"What kind of a corkscrew is it?"
"Instead of being twisted, as the ordinary corkscrew is, it is made exactly like a fork."—Judge's Library.

Foreign Beauties.

Mr. Taldome—I saw some dazzling pyrotechnics today. Mr. Lowbrow—Well, some of those foreign women are beautiful, but I wouldn't go so far as to call them dazzling.—Woman's Home Companion.

"The Flirting Princess"

From coast to coast there is only one expression relative to Harry Bulger and "The Flirting Princess" who will be at the Brainerd opera house Wednesday night, and that is that it is the very best in musical comedy on the road. It must be remembered that the production which will appear in Brainerd is the same as appeared in the Twin Cities, Duluth, Winnipeg and all of the large cities of the west, Mr. Singer, the owner, believing that the one night stands are entitled to see his productions at their best.

The following from the Spokesman-Review, of Spokane, Wash., shows what a hit the production made in the far west:

"No one would presume a 'Flirting Princess' to be a slow, retiring, antiquated personage that had lost any pristine glamor, and the one that appeared at the Auditorium last night was not an exception.

From the time the first diner in the Cafe Trouville tasted the magic
"Hashaisha" until it was again mentioned after the final curtain had received the buzz and was on its way,
and when poor "Hashaisha" was believed to have been lost in the shuffle, there was no time for the work of spiders on the Auditorium stage.
Of course Harry Bulger is not the flirting princess, and it also follows that "The Flirting Princess" is not Harry Bulger.

From the name it might be supposed that the comedian, Bulger, obsessed the greater part of the spotlight during the evening, but he gave way graciously to the display of a plenteous supply of other talent. And to mention names just here would run into lines.

A resume must include a bountiful supply of tuneful music, a gorgeous array of beautiful costumes and—
but just a moment to the costumes, for they are deserving of special praise. The audience is led to believe that there is an automatic tube service between the stage and the dressing rooms, and that Dame Fashion must have received night telegrams ahead of the season. The changes come so fast and in such dazzling array that the audience moves from one astonishment in to another.

As to girls—which are no small part of a musical comedy—"The Flirting Princess," herself a beauty, is surrounded by a pleasing array.
There are some who have no near resemblance to Venus, but they must be found with fine-toothed comb.

The fun is not of the convulsive sort,
but an audience is induced to applaud spontaneously.

There is one scene in the two acts,
but it is a pleasing one and before it the novelties are provided and the splendor of the costumes moves with such rapidity that the eye does not hunt at tiring. And one thing more in generalities—the plot. If you are particular and demand a plot "The Flirting Princess" has one. If you dislike plots, presto, it has none, so there you are.

The much-famed "Turkey Trot"
pleased the capacity house last night, but as with other numbers the management preferred to leave the audience asking for more rather than to risk surfeit by too generous encores.
"The Oogie Dance", by Harry Dickeson and Dale Fuller, was artistically given and well received.

Besides Bulger, who is gaining in embonpoint, and apparently in favor, the production is graced by the beauty and full voice of Helen Darling, the princess; Dale Fuller, a real comedienne, who was "ace high" last night; Jack Stuart, who is suffering with a cold and is not able to do himself justice in his songs; Elleen Sheridan who is pretty and excellent in character studies, but whose voice
might be better suited to solo work,
and a number of others of smaller magnitude and prominence in the offering.

"Cairo," "What Us Poor Girls Go Through," "The Gloomy Glooms," "La Deux Tempe Parisienne," "My
Jack O'Lantern" and "The Town
Where He Came From" were the best received of the 16 musical numbers last night."

Vaudeville at the Opera House

LAUGHTER.

"He who laughs," said the mother of Goethe, "can commit
no deadly sin." Sterne declares that every laugh lengthens our lease of life. Even the cold and cynical Carlyle declares, in his extreme
fashion, that "no man who has
heartily and wholly laughed can be altogether irredeemably depraved," and Sydney Smith said, "God has given us wit and flavor and brightness and laughter and perfumes to enliven the days of man's pilgrimage and to charm his pained steps
over the burning marl."

Having a Hard Time.

"Here I've been running for years,"
said the hall clock, "and I haven't moved an inch. I wouldn't mind that
the young lady of the family turns me
back because she says I'm too fast,
and then in the morning the old man comes along and grumbles because I'm too slow."

Not Crazy.

"You were just crazy to marry me, weren't you, dear?"
"No; just foolish."—Houston Post.

A Household Medicine

That stops coughs quickly and cures
colds is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Mrs. Anna Pelzer, 2526 Jefferson St., So. Omaha, Neb., says:
"I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as a sure cure for coughs and colds. It cured my daughter of a bad cold and my neighbor, Mrs. Benson, cured herself and her whole family with Foley's Honey
and Tar Compound. Everyone in our

Ruins of an Ancient City.

lie the ruins of a great city whose
origin was as much a matter of conjecture 900 years ago as it is today, according to the records of the Incas.
The stone walls of the largest buildings were of excellent workmanship,
and the gateways were elaborately
carved. Evidence in abundance exists that the inhabitants were skilled masons. At present the region is cold and arid and entirely incapable of producing cereals. It is inhabited by a few hardy mountaineers. It is evident that the climate is entirely different from what it was when the plateau was the center of a large population.

No Food at All.

"Lady," began Hungry Higgins, "I'd
thank yer fur a meal."
"Ah," exclaimed the bright housekeeper, "you're one of those after-dinner speakers."

"Not exactly, lady, or I wouldn't be so hungry. I ain't got so much as a chestnut about me."—Catholic Stand-

Not Charged.

"Pardon me," said the smiling customer, "but is this mineral water
charged?"
"Not any," replied the fair girl at the counter. "You pay the cashier."—Baltimore News.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line
of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that
by his method failure was impossible.

So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trilling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of
advice, "Write something."

"But," she protested by letter, "I
been printed."

"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something you already are an author. Publica-

TRUTH.

Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it
out. It is always upon our lips and
is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and
sets a man's invention upon the
rack, and one trick needs a great
many more to make it good.

Expert Witnesses.

A man appeared in the courts not
long ago in Paris charged with insulting the police in the execution of their duty. He denied having done anything of the kind, but the police brought
two witnesses into court to prove that he had not only been extremely rude,
but had also attempted to strike the policemen who arrested him. The two witnesses were called. The first, who had "heard the insult," was an old man of eighty. He was stone deaf and could not hear the judge's questions.
The second, who had seen the attempted assault, was an old lady. She was so blind that she had to be led to the witness bar. The prisoner was acquitted.—Paris Cor. London Express.

Mysterious.

"That was a mysterious robbery the other day," said Smith to Jones.
"Why, I don't see what mystery
there was about it," remarked Jones.
"The detectives caught the thieves the
same day."

"Yes," returned the first speaker
"that's what I said."—London Answers.

Queer.

Towne—My wife never likes me to refer to her age. Browne—My wife's funny that way too. She doesn't want me to remember her age, and yet she

A Mail Carrier's Load

Seems heavier when he has a weak
back and kidney trouble. Fred Dachren, mail carrier at Atchinson, Kas., says: "I have been bothered
with kidney and bladder trouble and
had a severe pain across my back.
Whenever I carried a heavy load of
mail, my kidney trouble increased.
Some time ago, I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and since taking
them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever." For sale by all druggists. mw1

The Common People in Spain.
Spain is one of the most illiterate
countries of the civilized world, yet
also one of the best educated, unless
education be merely that mass of undigested and commonly misapplied information absorbed within four walls,
says Henry A. Frank in "Four Months Afoot in Spain." Few men have a more exact knowledge, a more solid footing on the everyday earth, than the peasant, the laborer, the muleteer of Spain. One does not marvel merely
at the fluent, powerful, entirely grammatical language of these unlettered
fellows, but at the sound basic wisdom that stands forth in their every sentence.

For Cramps.

A piece of old fashioned candle wick wound around the leg in the right place next to the skin will prevent or
cure cramp in the calf of the leg or in the foot. I have proved this by personal experience. I believe this would prove effectual in preventing swimmers' cramp. Those liable to cramp while in the water would be wise to try it. Cotton batting wrapped around
the body from the armpits downward
saved the life of a man suffering agony from painters' cramp. It gave in stant relief.—National Magazine.

Boston's Streets.

"Where can I get a car that will take me to the South station?" asked
a lady of a Boston policeman.

"Right here, ma'am," he answered
courteously. "Any one of these cars
that passes will take ye."

"But the cars go both ways on this street. Which way does the car go
that I must take?"

"Well, as to that, 'twill make no difference which way the car goes, 'twill
York Press.

A Grim Role.

Collectors gather articles more or less interesting, but probably few go
in for such bulky objects as those chosen by a distinguished Britisher.
Old doors are the object of his desire.
His doors come from old houses, castles and abbeys of historical interest.
Some time ago he obtained at considerable cost a door through which during the French revolution Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday, Danton
and Robespierre passed on their way to the guillotine.

Stopping a Train.

Of the informalities of railway traveling in Scotland half a century ago Dr. John Ker gives some instances in his "Memories of a Gentleman." "At Orkney, a siding on the Banff branch line," he wrote, "I was instructed to
go to this siding, and, as the train approached, to set light to a newspaper
or any other material that would make
a good blaze and the train would stop.
The night was dark and windy, and I failed to set fire to the newspaper, and a stentorian shout had the same effect,
and I was taken aboard."

Sure Sign.

"I wonder if Maude and Jack have broken."
"What makes you suspect it?"
"I saw him smoking a pipe yesterday instead of a cigar."
"Then they have broken—or married."

An Obvious Fraud.

"That English lord is an impostor."
"How did you find it out?"
"Simpson sprung a new story at the
club last night, and the fellow saw
the point at once."

How He Fell.

"They killed him by kindness."
"Ah, dyspepsia is a terrible disease, isn't it?"

No Trick at All.

I really think that it would be
An easy thing to do—
To guess the riddle of the sphinx
If I the answer knew.

Creating a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have varied at different times.
Thus, a box on the ear and a stroke
with a sword on the shoulder were at
one period given to the recipient of the dignity. A blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans, and this was afterward
changed into a blow with the flat of
the sword on the shoulder of the
knight, a ceremony which has survived, with some modification, to the present day.

She Was.

A very loyal lady of English birth
once asked an American dame in England whether they had any painters in America.
"Oh, yes," said the American, "you have some of them here—Sargent and Abbey and Mrs. Merritt and McClure
Hamilton."
"Dear me," said the English lady,
"you'll be claiming Whistler next?"

Uncertainty of Soldiering.

"Too bad about Lord Chawlin, isn't it?"
"What's happened to him?"
"Why, he's had to leave the guards,
don't you know?"

"And what have they done with
him?"
"Put him in a common fighting regiment, by Jove!"—London Mail.

He Knew Women.

"Sir," says the inventor to the captalist, "I have invented a corkscrew that will sell on sight to every woman
in this land. I want you to back me."
"What kind of a corkscrew is it?"
"Instead of being twisted, as the ordinary corkscrew is, it is made exactly like a fork."—Judge's Library.

Foreign Beauties.

Mr. Talldown—I saw some dazzling pyrotechnics today, Mr. Lowbrow—
Well, some of those foreign women
are beautiful, but I wouldn't go so far as to call them dazzling.—Woman's Home Companion.

"The Flirting Princess"

From coast to coast there is only one expression relative to Harry Bulger, and "The Flirting Princess" who will be at the Brainerd opera house Wednesday night, and that is that it is the very best in musical comedy on
the road. It must be remembered that the production which will appear in Brainerd is the same as appeared in the Twin Cities, Duluth, Winnipeg and all of the large cities
of the west. Mr. Singer, the owner, believing that the one night stands are entitled to see his productions at their best.

The following from the Spokesman-Review, of Spokane, Wash.,
shows what a hit the production made
in the far west:

"No one would presume a 'Flirting Princess' to be a slow, retiring, antiquated personage that had lost any pristine glamor, and the one that appeared at the Auditorium last night was not an exception.

From the time the first diner in the Cafe Trouville tasted the magic
"Hashaisha" until it was again mentioned after the final curtain had received the buzz and was on its way,
and when poor "Hashaisha" was believed to have been lost in the shuffle,
there was no time for the work
of spiders on the Auditorium stage.
Of course Harry Bulger is not the
flirting princess, and it also follows
that "The Flirting Princess" is not Harry Bulger.

From the name it might be supposed that the comedian, Bulger, obsessed the greater part of the spotlight during the evening, but he gave
way graciously to the display of a plentiful supply of other talent. And to mention names just here would
run into lines.

A resume must include a bountiful
supply of tuneful music, a gorgeous
array of beautiful costumes and—
but just a moment to the costumes,
for they are deserving of special
praise. The audience is led to believe that there is an automatic tube
service between the stage and the
dressing rooms, and that Dame Fashion must have received night telegrams ahead of the season. The changes come so fast and in such
dazzling array that the audience moves from one astonishment in to another.

As to girls—which are no small part of a musical comedy—"The Flirting Princess," herself a beauty,
is surrounded by a pleasing array.
There are some who have no near resemblance to Venus, but they must

be found with fine-toothed comb.
The fun is not of the convulsive sort,
but an audience is induced to applaud spontaneously.

There is one scene in the two acts,
but it is a pleasing one and before
it the novelties are provided and the
splendor of the costumes moves with
such rapidity that the eye does not
hunt at tiring. And one thing more in generalities—the plot. If you are particular and demand a plot "The Flirting Princess" has one. If you dislike plots, presto, it has none, so

The much-famed "Turkey Trot"
pleased the capacity house last night,
but as with other numbers the management preferred to leave the audience asking for more rather than to
risk surfeit by too generous encores.
"The Oogie Dance," by Harry Dicke-
son and Dale Fuller, was artistically given and was well received.

Besides Bulger, who is gaining in
embonpoint, and apparently in favor,
the production is graced by the beauty and full voice of Helen Darling,
the princess; Dale Fuller, a real comedienne, who was "ace high" last night; Jack Stuart, who is suffering
with a cold and is not able to do himself justice in his songs; Elleen Sheridan who is pretty and excellent in character studies, but whose voice
might be better suited to solo work,
and a number of others of smaller
magnitude and prominence in the offering.

"Cairo," "What Us Poor Girls Go
Jack O'Lantern" and "The Town
Where He Came From" were the best received of the 16 musical numbers last night."
